Gwinnett Place CID to get priority pact from Street Smarts

Street Smarts announces today that they proposed a prioritization list to the Board of Directors of the Gwinnett Place Community Improvement District (CID) in an effort to establish short and long-term transportation enhancement projects District-wide.

Topics included planning and funding options for comprehensive signage upgrades, sidewalk installations, roadway additions and other projects aimed at increasing mobility, attractiveness and safety.

Board members are expected to address Street Smarts' proposals during a detailed strategic planning session scheduled to occur before mid August.

Street Smarts was founded in 1990. The firm provides service to both the public and private sectors in all sectors of the transportation industry, including traffic engineering.

Loganville's Bob Williamson wins small businessman title

Bob Williamson of Horizon Software International, Inc. of Loganville was named the 2006 Gwinnett Chamber of Commerce Small Business Person of the Year at the Small Business Person of the Year Awards Luncheon.

Established in 1992, Horizon Software International, Inc. is a privately held technology company, one recognized as a global leader in food service management technology. Horizon's primary focus is supply chain management technology. Its state-of-the-art ERP solution for the institutionalized food service industry was recently awarded the contract by the Department of Defense to provide technology for every dining facility for the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force including every land base, ship, submarine and remote mobile battlefield throughout the world.

In addition to the military market, Horizon's products are installed in hospitals (including patient feeding and cafeterias), retirement communities, K-12 public and private school cafeterias, colleges and universities, correctional facilities, and corporate restaurants, entailing some 14,000 installations.

Bob Williamson currently serves as chairman and CEO of Horizon, which he founded 14 years ago. Under Williamson's direction, Horizon grew from a small start-up with two employees to a fast-paced, profitable company. Horizon currently has 138 employees and develops and supports all of its offerings in-house. Deloitte awarded Horizon its "Fast 50" award for the past two years for being one of the fastest growing technology companies in Georgia.

As chairman and CEO, Bob continues to mentor and guide the company to create a core management team with an infrastructure that effectively executes plans and exceeds company goals. His son, Michael, currently runs the day-to-day operations as COO and his other son, Jon, has been Horizon's top sales producer for the past three years.
