Gwinnett Place CID Board Member Receives Award

Submitted by Gwinnett Place Community Improvement District

Marcy Adams, vice chair of the Gwinnett Place Community Improvement District (CID), has received a special award from the Gwinnett Convention and Visitors Bureau (GCVB).

Adams was named "General Manager of the Year" by the GCVB during its annual tourism awards and holiday luncheon, which was held recently. Adams manages the Atlanta Marriott Gwinnett Place on Pleasant Hill Road.

The award recognizes Adams' "leadership, support and advocacy for the tourism industry" as well as her participation with the CID and GCVB Board.

"I am honored to have received such high recognition from my peers and fellow professionals here in Gwinnett County," Adams said. "This award reflects our commitment to delivering quality services to those relying on us, and that includes the stakeholders inside the Gwinnett Place CID."

Adams joined the Marriott Gwinnett Place in 1999 and has served as controller, resident manager and director of operations. Her professional experience includes a 15-year history of finance and management. She is a graduate of Wichita State University and holds a bachelor's degree in accounting.

In addition to Marcy Adams, the GCVB also recognized the following Atlanta Marriott professionals:

- Deborah Johnson, Conference Services Manager - "Unsung Hero Award"
- Guido Brun, Director of Sales and Marketing - "Industry Professional of the Year"
