

Print this page Close

Community improvement districts win planning grants

By David Wickert
The Atlanta Journal-Constitution

8:34 a.m. Tuesday, March 1, 2011

The Atlanta Regional Commission recently awarded grants to help two Gwinnett County community improvement districts with planning initiatives.

The commission gave $50,000 to the Gwinnett Place CID to help update a decade-old market assessment. The study will examine the business environment and demographics of an area that includes Gwinnett Place and Sugarloaf Parkway.

The commission also gave $20,000 to the Gwinnett Village CID to help pay for a signage and wayfinding master plan to improve traffic circulation and community identity. The study will focus on connecting the Jimmy Carter Boulevard and Indian Trail Road corridors.

Find this article at:

Print this page Close

<http://www.ajc.com/news/gwinnett/community-improvement-districts-win-856965.html>